

Are YOU a World-Ready Educator? (continued)

Think of it! How much more relevant and meaningful the school day could be if students know that their learning and actions are making things happen that matter! How much greater the chance of achieving the Global Goals if every teacher and student in every school around the world worked to make it so! Instead of burdening students with repetitive “exercises” at school, what if students were engaged in inquiry and problem-based learning that reaps measurable action however small?

Examples of how this is happening abound!

Organizations like Participate (www.participate.com) and Teach SDGs (www.teachsdgs.org) are leading the way with free lessons and materials accessible to teachers everywhere. Are you ready to get started? Global Collaboration Week (<https://www.globalcollaborationweek.org/>) takes place September 17 – 21st this year and “The World’s Largest Lesson” (<http://worldslargestlesson.globalgoals.org/>) kicks off on September 24th.

There is no need to stop there! Dozens of videos appropriate for use across grade levels can be found on the YouTube Channel geared specifically toward teaching the global goals (<https://www.youtube.com/>). iEARN (www.iEARN.org) is an international network of teachers collaborating to create global projects for students across boundaries using the power of the internet. Join the RU World Ready Global Education Facebook Group here to follow what’s happening and stay in the loop for next year’s conference: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/1038990172858533/>.

Together, let’s get “World-Ready”!
