

Letter from the NARHC President

*Happy
New Year*

Happy New Year and we hope that your holiday was wonderful and filled with peace. As we start the New Year at NARHC, I would like to share with you some of our goals for 2017. First and foremost, we will continue to bring you the most current, relevant and professional conferences in the RHC community. You will not be disappointed in your attendance to the Spring or Fall Institute; our attendees' satisfaction remains very positive. I look forward to seeing you there.

Secondly, federal policy and health insurance will change! NARHC and Capitol Associates will be leading the efforts to ensure the RHC community is at the table and your issues and concerns are not only addressed but understood and considered. We will collaborate with other associations when the issues represent common concerns. If you have specific issues of concern, please let us know.

Lastly, NARHC University will be rolling out our RHC Clinic Managers' Certification course. We are very excited about the content and quality of the course and feel it will deliver a significant benefit to the individual manager and RHC practice. More information will be available at our website soon. Stay tuned to the list serve and www.narhc.org for updated details. Our current plan is to start with our first group of enrollees at the Spring conference.

We are always open to comment at NARHC, if you need us, we are here. Feel free to call or email us about your concerns.
