Coronavirus Update: A Message from Archer's President

Christopher R. Gibson
President

We hope this message finds you, your family and co-workers well.

Due to the ongoing uncertainty and fast-moving coronavirus pandemic, I wanted to reach out to provide you with updated information on how Archer is responding to the situation. Needless to say, the safety and well-being of our professionals, staff, clients, and the communities in which we live and work, is our top priority. We are following guidance from local health agencies, the CDC, and our government officials who stress the need for all employees able to do so to work from home. As such, all Archer offices will close beginning Thursday, March 19th.

Please be assured that we are continuing to work for you during this time of remote operations. We have tested telecommuting technology in place allowing us to continue our normal client service functions without interruption. All of our attorneys are available via phone or email and prepared to continue to fulfill clients' needs to the highest level of expectation, which has long been the hallmark of our firm. Our entire team stands ready to assist you in any way we can.

I know that we are all watching the development of the coronavirus pandemic with feelings of concern and uncertainty, and that many of you are dealing with issues you have never encountered before. Archer has established an interdisciplinary COVID-19 Task Force in support of our clients' short and long-term business and personal needs. Over the past several weeks, we have fielded myriad questions from clients related to how COVID-19 is impacting their businesses, as well as creating new personal estate planning and family law concerns. Through client alerts and our social media channels, we have been sharing information on COVID-19 related legal issues and will continue to do so. We have also been monitoring the rapidly-changing regional executive orders that are impacting so many of our clients' lives and businesses.

We will continue to closely monitor this rapidly evolving situation and provide you with updates as appropriate. I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your continued support and wish you, your families and your colleagues well. Please don't hesitate to reach out to your Archer contact should you have any questions or concerns.
