

The Guide's Angle – Octoberfest!

Chris Scalley, River Through Atlanta Guide Service

Everyone is enjoying the cooler weather and Fall foliage but let's not forget the trout like it too. October is the beginning of the brown trout spawning run. Anglers will begin seeing Browns in uncommon areas like shallow gravel bars where they will attempt to deposit and fertilize their eggs. As the days get shorter you will see Browns active even during the middle of the day with the occasional belly-flop splash as these brooding fish leap entirely out of the water which is a breeding ritual of some kind. River water clarity will become murky almost an opaque green hue caused by the Lanier reservoir stratifying. Don't let this murky water stop you just use larger flies with a higher profile so the fish can see your offering. Late afternoons be ready for pods of rising trout likely either Blue-winged-olive mayflies or October-caddis will be hatching.

Chris Scalley
Email: chrisscalley@bellsouth.net
Phone: 770-650-8630

Chris Scalley, the owner of River Through Atlanta, grew up on the Chattahoochee River and brings his passion for the river and the trout to his clients. Spending over 200 days a year on the 'Hooch, gives Chris an unsurpassed knowledge of the river's ecosystem and the behavior of the trout that inhabit it. No matter the time of year, Chris and his affiliate guides are ready to share the most efficient tactics for catching fish for their clients. Even if you're new to the sport of fly fishing, his expert guides can have you casting and presenting flies with proficiency by the day's end. Website <http://riverthroughatlanta.com/> Check out Chris Scalley on YouTube <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AL2ttz8vKbQ>