Diagnosing and Dismantling Obstetric Racism in Birthing Hospitals

The purpose of the 3 Foundational Experiential Learning Modules are to:

- Introduce the concept of obstetric racism and its impact on Black pregnant, birthing, and postpartum people
- Recognize the importance of listening to, amplifying, and integrating the perspectives of Black women and other Black birthing people
- Provide tools and guidance for challenging racism in San Francisco's birthing hospitals

After the trainings, the audience will be able to:

- Explain the challenges in diagnosing and dismantling obstetric racism through hospital-centered knowledge, beliefs, and practices
- Utilize three concepts to re-imagine the unique lived experiences and activism of Black women and people in society and in hospital births.
- Describe strategies to amplify patient narratives and community wisdom in testing for quality, safety, and equity in hospital birth settings
