Rethinking Candidate Marketing in the Next Normal

The background of the entire page is a photograph of two microphones on a podium. The microphones are positioned diagonally, one on the left and one on the right. The image has a color gradient overlay, transitioning from a deep red at the top to a dark blue at the bottom. The text is overlaid on a white rectangular area in the upper half of the page.

Name Recognition is KEY The next normal - getting your message out there (even when you can't be)

1 | STATIONARY SIGNAGE

Yard signs and banners are highly visible essentials for posting in the yards of supporters, along busy roadways and other high-traffic areas:

- Yard signs are economical and weatherproof; perfect for displaying on lawns throughout the campaign
- Outdoor banners are large enough to be read from a distance on buildings and along highways
- Sail signs use color and movement to grab attention
- Durable posters can be used indoors or out

2 | MESSAGING ON THE MOVE

Portable messaging lets staff and volunteers take your campaign on the road - wherever they go:

- Vehicle magnets, window decals and bumper stickers create a mini moving billboard and allow you to get your message out while practicing social distancing
- A-frame sandwich boards have a built-in handle and can easily be moved from place to place
- Custom t-shirts can be worn to identify volunteers and staff - or given to supporters to help spread the word

3 | LEAVE-BEHINDS

Even though volunteers may not be knocking on doors and visiting with voters in all areas, door hangers or promotional products can be hung on doors for a contact-free drop-off:

- Door hangers can contain a QR code to drive the recipient to a website for information
- Post-it® Notes or individually-wrapped pens are useful reminders to increase name recognition

Connecting with voters in uncertain times is the next normal

4 | DIRECT MAIL MARKETING

Campaign best practices include both digital and traditional means. Direct mail remains an integral tool for reaching the largest number of voters and creating lasting impact:

- Use postcards, rack cards and brochures to not only share your campaign message, but also important information on community resources during this crisis

5 | FUNDRAISING FROM A DISTANCE

Fundraising is still critical but needs to take on a new tone as supporters' circumstances have changed. Re-evaluate your fundraising goals and offer a wider range of donation options:

- Donation forms and return envelopes simplify giving
- Campaign stickers are an affordable "thank you" for supporters

6 | MAKE IT PERSONAL

A handwritten note or hand-signed letter goes a long way in making a personal impression:

- Personal stationery and note cards are perfect to send thank-yous to essential workers and volunteers who have made a difference in their communities
