Social thinking is the process by which we interpret the thoughts, beliefs, intentions, emotions, knowledge and actions of another person along with the context of the situation to understand that person's experience.

The Social Thinking teaching process utilizes peer-reviewed research and client family values to foster the development of:

- social self-awareness
- perspective taking/theory of mind
- self-regulation
- executive functioning
- social-emotional understanding
- social skills
- organizational systems
- reading comprehension
- written expression
- and more
