Pastor Page:

Alleluia! Christ is risen! Christ is risen, indeed. Alleluia!

Sometimes, or even usually, when I preach a sermon, I am preaching it to myself. That is, I am proclaiming things to you that really I need to hear, and hoping that if I need them, someone else might need them, too. And sometimes (and I hope this is the case for you, too), certain lines from my sermon stick with me long after I've gone home on Sunday, and not letting go. I assume this is the Holy Spirit, hard at work on my own heart.

Both my Maundy Thursday sermon and my Easter sermon included lines that went something like, "God doesn't promise to do the same ol' thing. God promises to do a new thing." This is solidly biblical; the Bible is replete with this message. A couple verses that come to mind are from Isaiah 43:19 ("Behold, I am doing a new thing; now it springs forth, do you not perceive it?") and Revelation 21:5 ("And the one who was seated on the throne said, 'See, I am making all things new.'"). God doesn't say, "Watch this, I'll do the old thing, but better," or, "I'm going to keep doing what I've been doing, and hope for better results." No, God says, "I'm doing something new. Watch this!"

So what makes me think that I should live my own life saying things like, "I've always done it this way, and it works all right, so I'll keep at it." I know, I know, if it ain't broke, don't fix it. But sometimes, things are "broke," and we are just so used to it that we don't notice, or are just too tired to do anything about it.

I'll be honest, friends: I don't want to be too tired to fix it. I want to embrace the abundant life God envisions for me. If Lent was all about repentance, metanoia, turning a different way, away from brokenness and toward the God of life... then Easter is all about living into that new thing that God is doing!

I'm sure your life is full of such opportunities to engage in something new. Whether it's a new job, or a new hobby, or rethinking an old, tired pattern that no longer brings you life, our lives are full of opportunities to see God's life-giving new thing come about.

We are also thinking about this as a congregation. Included in this newsletter, you will find five "Mission Milestones" our council prayerfully discerned, after considering who we really want to be as a congregation, the "best version of ourselves." We based them on the process we've been working through for almost a year, of telling our story, determining our "culture drivers" (things we do intuitively as a congregation), and assessing our assets (where are we already strong, and what assets do we lack?). With these milestones, we hope to play to our strengths, even as we strive to strengthen our weaker areas. Take a look, and let us know what you think. In the coming months, we will be developing strategic steps for each of these milestones, and would love your input.

And how about you? What new thing is God showing you in your life? Where is the Spirit urging you to step out in faith? What old story do you need to let go of, so that you can more fully embrace the abundant life God has in mind for you?

Christ is risen! Christ is risen indeed!
Alleluia!

In Easter joy,
Pastor Johanna

~ Mission Milestones ~

At our April retreat, the council decided on the following "Mission Milestones" as areas of focus in the coming years. We would love to be in conversation about these! Please share your thoughts with a council member.

1. Implement a program to grow our children's faith, service and values, to equip them for a life of faith.

Involve whole families and multiple generations in their faith formation, helping them to know and trust that the church is a safe and life-giving place, now and throughout their lives.

2. Build deeper and more meaningful relationships within the congregation.

After two years apart, let's get to know each other again, building friendship, dispelling loneliness and creating space for genuine connection.

3. Gain an understanding of the particular needs in our surrounding community to establish a more focused social ministry plan.

How can we effectively serve if we don't understand the needs? We hope to make connections with community leaders, and build with them relationships of mutuality.

4. Increase awareness of the ministry of St. Paul's.

Communicate within and beyond our congregation using the many tools and platforms available (e.g. social media, showing up in the community).

5. Understand the spiritual needs in our congregation, and develop a plan to meet them.

Create spaces for people to share and grow in their spiritual life, as individuals and as a community of faith.

Sponsor a Coffee Hour!

As we look toward life-after-pandemic, we are “resurrecting” our coffee hour tradition, asking groups or individuals to sponsor a coffee hour. We have many folks who have begun worshipping with us over the past two years who are eager to meet some people.

First Communion Class May 22nd after worship

We are holding a first communion class for kids who are ready to learn about this sacred and central part of our faith practice. If your child has been asking, they are ready to start learning about it.

New Member Class

Considering joining St. Paul's? We will be holding a new members class this spring as a chance to meet people and learn about St. Paul's.

If you are interested, let Pastor Johanna know!

Now Hiring

We are looking for a Nursery Attendant to watch children in the nursery from 9-11am on Sundays. $15/hr.

Moms Group Meet-up May 19th @ 6:30pm in the foyer

Simply come for an evening of refreshments, tea, good conversation, friendship, and encouragement.

An option to join virtually is available.
