

E3 Project Decatur County

Fourteen agencies hosted a Community Resource Session to offer families transition-related information and resources. The agencies were also able to share with one another information about their programs in order to provide referrals and assist families.

In June, Janie Kelley, P2P Transition Partner for Decatur County, was invited by GVRA to present to parents of out-of-school youth. She was able to share information with parents about the NOW/Comp waiver services for students who are transitioning to adult services.

In August, Janie and Shelia Lamons, GVRA Counselor for Bainbridge High School, attended this high school's Open House. While sharing a table, they were able to provide families with information and discuss opportunities for additional collaboration. Janie also attended a Family Connection Collaboration Meeting and a Community Fair. Participants received an overview of P2P programs and services. Afterwards, Janie contacted the families and professionals to provide additional information and one-on-one assistance based on their specific needs.

We wrapped up the summer with a very productive planning meeting with our E3 partners. Janie and other representatives from P2P and GVRA met with the Decatur County School District to discuss how to provide additional opportunities for collaboration and support of parents as it relates to transition from high school. We look forward to building upon the work we began last year.
