A brief History of pregnancy resource centers

Pregnancy resource centers (PRCs) are local, nonprofit organizations that provide support and information to women and men faced with making decisions about an unexpected or unwanted pregnancy. The history of the modern pregnancy resource center movement began in the late 1960s, as several states began to remove legal restrictions on abortion.

How pregnancy resource centers began

In response to this shift toward legalization, Robert J. Pearson, a building contractor and Catholic-pro-life advocate, established a foundation in 1969 to assist in the opening of volunteer run Pregnancy Problem Centers across Hawaii. The centers offered free pregnancy testing, counseling, and some emergency and financial help for women considering abortion.

*Pearson also wrote and published a 93-page manual called, How to Start and Operate Your Own Pro-Life Outreach Crisis Pregnancy Center.

The first network of pregnancy care centers was founded in Toronto, Ontario's, under the name Bright right in Canada. These centers were soon spread to the United States as Birthright International. Other groups sprung up, and some of the first modern crisis pregnancy centers began helping women in California in 1968. Within three years there were 70 centers, many which joined together to form Alternatives to Abortion (later known as Heartbeat International.) In 1975, two years after the nationwide legalization of abortion, theologian Harold O.J. Brown formed the Christian Action Council, a group which would later adopt the name Care Net. Care Net Opened its first PRC in 1983. In 1994 the National Institute of Family and Life Advocate's (NIFLA) was establish to provide legal counsel to PRSs. Today, Heartbeat International, Care Net, and NIFLA are the three major PCR Networks operating over 5300 pregnancy centers in United States.

PRCs serve more than 2.3 million people each year, providing such services as pregnancy test, ultrasounds and medical services, abstinence education, options consulting and education, and parenting and childbirth classes. But many also share the gospel with their clients. For instant, Care Net reports that over the past seven years, more than 1.2 million people heard the gospel at one of their centers.

Our Mission at Daybreak Pregnancy Resource Center

Daybreak Center demonstrates the Truth and unconditional love of Jesus in a safe and confidential environment to women and men, and families experiencing pregnancy. Who we are! As a team we fully support each other so that together we can accomplish more. We enjoy wit, humor, and comradery, so working together is filled with laughter. However, we are serious about working hard with everyone putting forth their best effort and paying attention to details. We are passionate about helping others and have a heart for reaching out to help those in need. Above all we seek the Gospel of Jesus Christ through the way we work and interact. Daybreak places great emphasis on teamwork and supporting each other. We require people to be a good fit with our philosophy of how we work as a team. We need people who are hardworking, consistent, and take initiative. Listening skills and critical thinking are paramount. Open-mindedness and being comfortable in giving and receiving feedback are essential. Being flexible with change and able to work in a sometimes -chaotic environment is necessary. Since Daybreak is faith-based, all team members must ascribe to the Daybreak Pregnancy Resource Center's Statement of Faith and committed to the sanctity of human life. Team members must be committed followers of Christ and be willing to share their testimonies with gentleness and respect as in 1 Peter 3:15

Selfless service that recognizes human dignity

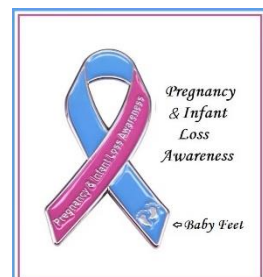

I am convinced more and more that the great challenge of our time is recovering a basic understanding of human dignity.....the truth that we are all made in the image of God....and the responsibilities that are attached to that. We must act wisely, decently, and humbly in the light of all this. And so, we match our fervent prayers with selfless service, which is something those who serve at pregnancy resource centers do on a daily if not hourly basis. We are an encouragement for so many Christ followers who deeply believe in the cause of life, the dignity of Mothers, and the importance of family. In many ways, and many instances, we are shining forth the very light of Jesus that we hear about in the passage from Isaiah. Isn't that, at the core, exactly what we do? At Daybreak we help scared Mothers realize and see the humanity of the precious preborn child in their wombs. They walk into Daybreak ...so many under the sway of lies about a clump of cells, an inconvenience, a burden, and belief that life is disposal...and we get to be the ones who offer them a lifeline, rescuing them from that darkness that has enveloped them. We don't stop there, we offer support, care, and hope. Hope is what so many of these parents need in those critical moments. In doing so, once again, there is an echo of the Isaiah passage, uttered by an old prophet, ages ago. For, he relayed a promise that a Child would be born to a people darkened by lies, conspiracies, and death. And he said that child would usher in the light as a Wonderful Counselor and a Prince of Peace.

We offer Real help for mothers who choose to have their babies, in the form of free layettes (clothing, blankets, bottles, sheets, lotions, diapers, formula, etc.) baby furniture, anything the mother/Baby needs. And clothing and diapers for the child up through the age of two.All Free of Charge!!!!

Our clients do not need to prove financial need to receive our help.... we are there for all who seek love, understanding, compassion, and truth. Our volunteers are caring and generous people who want only the best for our mothers, babies, and family.

With the support Daybreak receives, we will be able to continue our services for our communities, Wilcox, Dooly and Crisp. We also serve anyone who comes to the Center.
