

Amita Lhamo – Author Visit
Friday September 6 @
6pm

The Library will host author
Amita Lhamo on Friday
September 6 at 6pm in the
Ann Graves Reading

Room. In her new book, “Dandelions Blooming in the Cracks of Sidewalks” Amita will be reading stories as she shares some of the gifts she received in her work with dying and invite audience members into a conversation about life, death, and kindness.

Amita Lhamo has studied with Lakota, Christian, Hindu, and Buddhist teachers, including a five-year meditation retreat within the Tibetan Buddhist tradition. Amita combines her experience as a psychotherapist and hospice chaplain with her spiritual training to teach and write about the spiritual care of the dying. Lhamo shares stories from thousands of talks as she nurtured the families, friends and individuals through the soul’s journey in death.
