JEWISH SENIOR LIFE AND HERITAGE CHRISTIAN SERVICES PARTNER TO OFFER INTERNSHIPS FOR PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES

ROCHESTER, N.Y., September 27, 2018 — Young adults with disabilities now have a new internship opportunity thanks to a partnership between Jewish Senior Life and Heritage Christian Services. Beginning on Oct. 2, the two organizations will offer Project SEARCH®, a nationally recognized work preparation program for people age 18 to 35 who have intellectual or developmental disabilities.

The B. Thomas Golisano Foundation brought Project SEARCH to the Rochester area and provided the essential funding to develop local partnerships.

“We are thrilled to be one of only 17 employers selected in New York State as a Project SEARCH employment site, and only the second senior living community in New York,” said Michael King, President/CEO of Jewish Senior Life. “Our partnership with Heritage Christian Services will help address a significant community need for individuals with intellectual or developmental disabilities.”

Through Project SEARCH at Jewish Senior Life, interns will benefit from classroom instruction, career exploration and hands-on learning with mentors, empowering them to master skills needed for competitive employment.

“People often think of a job as a way to get a paycheck, but it is so much more than that,” said Marianne Durrant, director of the Employment Alliance at Heritage Christian Services. “When you have work that means something to you, it opens the door to having more confidence, a sense of contributing and a new – more equal – level of socializing.”

Support from Heritage Christian Services will be provided throughout the program, and additional supporting partners include the New York State Office for People With Developmental Disabilities, Adult Career and Continuing Education Services - Vocational Rehabilitation and Strong Center for Developmental Disabilities.

Ten interns will be selected for Project SEARCH at Jewish Senior Life, and applications will be accepted on a rolling basis. For more information or to apply for the program, contact Marianne Durrant at mdurrant@heritagechristianservices.org or (585) 340-2009.
