

The vendors work side-by-side with owner Karen Smith, who refers to her business associates as, 'one big Salvage Yard Family'. Karen's Salvage Yard family includes her mother and daughter who create and sell unique license plate boxes and crochet art. In the many spaces allotted to vendors, there are creative items including antique pottery, vintage signs and toys and new items including stain glass window decorations, handmade baby blankets personalized with the new arrival's birth information and other handmade decorations. If you're looking for the perfect Cleveland T-shirt for a north-coast resident, you'll find a great selection at The Salvage Yard. Also available are coffee and chocolates that are truly gift-worthy if you can part with them! Karen's youngest vendor, at 15, makes beautiful, unique handcrafted wooden cutting boards. Another high school-age vendor has been in business for years making driftwood art. If you are looking for a gift with meaning, Happy Thoughts Candle Co. donates proceeds to the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention and offers many candle scents to choose from (including bubble gum and sugar cookies!). There are too many artisans to mention here.

For the entire experience, please visit The Salvage Yard on Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10:00 AM to 6:00 PM. Also, mark your calendar to visit The Salvage Yard on June 26 and September 25 for their outdoor sales event that includes food trucks and live entertainment (free admission and free parking at New Hope Church across the street). Vendors will have outdoor tables and will offer special items exclusive to these events.
