

Two-Week Summer Therapeutic Respite Therapeutic Respite for Children with RAD

Are the summer holidays making you feel exhausted?

Are your summer plans being sabotaged by your child?

Summertime can leave families feeling exhausted and worn out. Taking a break to get yourself rested up and recharged is the best thing you can do to help your child and your family.

While your child is in respite catch up on some much-needed rest, sleep in, and plan a summertime adventure for your healthy children!

Designed for families who:

- are looking for a break and extra support
- have other children in the home who need a break
- are currently using therapeutic parenting in their home

Therapeutic respite is a time for your child to work on life skills and practice appropriate family-kid behaviours by working on being respectful, responsible, and fun to be around.

The goal for your child during these fourteen days is to continue on their healing journey while allowing parents and healthy siblings to rest up and have a 'normal' family life for a few weeks.

While in respite your child will continue with any doctor/therapist appointed exercises and therapy sessions. Children will also continue working on any restitutions and debt payment that they may have.

This package includes:

- 24/7 support and crisis intervention
- Therapy sessions with the child's therapist (if applicable)
- Two online, video conferencing meetings with parents
- Personalized interventions and strategies for integrating your child back home

Price: $1,650.00

- Includes:
 - All above mentioned services
 - All room and board
 - Travel to and from the airport (if applicable)
- PLUS two copies of the book, 'A Glimpse at Understanding RAD' for you to distribute to family and friends to help them better understand your child's disorder.
- PLUS a 15% discount on the Advanced Parenting Academy online course.

This program is available from July through September of 2018. There are limited spots available, so contact us now!

"Parents are the center of a child's universe. When parents forget to take care of themselves, falter and wear out, the family wears out. And the children go nowhere."
