Memoir (Inspirational), Adult

Former First Daughter, Granddaughter, and Today Show Co-anchor Jenna Bush Hager has written a wonderful memoir, entitled Everything Is Beautiful in Its Time: Seasons of Love and Loss, available to place on hold for curbside pickup and also in eAudiobook and eBook formats on Overdrive.

Jenna shares the funny stories and wisdom she and her twin sister Barbara received from their Grandparents, former President George H.W. Bush and First Lady Barbara Bush and Harold and Jenna Welch.

In 2019, Jenna and Barbara lost three of their Grandparents: President George H.W. Bush, First Lady Barbara Bush, and Jenna Welch. In Everything Is Beautiful In Its Time: Seasons of Love and Loss, Jenna and Barbara not only shared positive stories, but also their grief of losing three very important people in their lives. They handled these losses with grace and humility while in the public eye. Despite this loss, there was love in 2019. In August of that year, Jenna gave birth to her third child, a boy, Henry Harold (Hal) Hager, named after Jenna's Grandfather Harold "Pa" Welch, who died in 1995 after a battle with Alzheimer's.

Everyone knows President George H.W. Bush and First Lady Barbara Bush, but to Jenna and Barbara (and their cousins), they are Gampy and Ganny. They loved the letters they received from them on their birthdays, summer vacations in Kennebunkport Maine, and visits to the White House when Gampy was President.

Jenna and Barbara's other grandparents were known simply as Pa and Grammee. They didn't live at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue but in Midland, Texas. But Jenna and Barbara loved them just the same, especially because they became experts in knowing all the stars in the universe thanks to Pa and Grammee.
