

The Path

Introduction from Soul Matters

In religious circles, “trust talk” most often revolves around having faith that life will look after us. For instance, our Christian friends sing hymns about God “watching over us” and keeping “an eye on the sparrow.” Our Jewish friends lift up the Exodus story to encourage faith that God will help us make our way even when things look bleak. Likewise, prayer practice for our Muslim friends is all about reminding oneself that you are in Allah’s safe hands. We UUs translate similar sentiments using the language of trusting “a Love that will not let us go.”

This call to trust Life’s support comes to us as a gift. After all, it’s all too easy to convince ourselves that life is a foe. So we need our faith communities to restore our faith that life is ultimately a friend. We need the reassurance. We need to know that when we fall we can count on being picked up.

But what about being pushed? Don’t we need to count on that, too? A Love that won’t let us go is essential, but isn’t it just as important to have faith in a Love that won’t let us get too comfortable? Especially as we welcome in Black History Month, we certainly don’t want to forget about a Love that disturbs. We need a Love that promises to not let privilege remain hidden, and unsettles those who have it. A Love that tells those of us who are marginalized and tired, “I won’t let your pain be ignored.”

And just when that call to trust seems the one we all need to listen to, another voice adds itself to the mix. This one telling us to trust that it’s not all up to us. That sometimes it’s okay to rest. That doesn’t disturb but instead assures us that we can let go. That tells us to trust that we can - for a while - put the work down because others are ready to pick it up, knowing that we will be there to pick it up when rest calls to them.

So, friends, where does that leave us?

What is it?

Trust life to pick us up?

Trust life to push and poke us?

Trust that it's okay to put the work down for a while?

It is all of them, of course. And more.

But maybe it's mostly about trusting that we'll know which call is right for us.

Maybe it's about having faith in ourselves and not letting anyone tell us what we need to trust.

There's no one message this month after all. Everyone's heart is wrestling with a loss of faith in its own way. The trust you need to repair is likely different than mine. What we both long for is safe space. Space to say how hard that work of repair is. Space to say how much it hurts to have to repair it in the first place.

So let's remember that above all. And prove, this month, that we all can be trusted to offer each other that precious space.

Self-Care for the Spiritual Journey

When we go deeper into spiritual exploration together and individually, there's always a chance we will encounter some tender spots in our own spirits and stories. Therefore, it is important, when doing deep spiritual work, to have trusted companions and adequate support on the journey, and to know you are welcome to care for yourself and your spirit along the way, engaging in the theme to the level that's comfortable for you.

Likewise, please know that we are here to offer support if you find yourself struggling with something surfaced by the monthly theme. Please call our Spiritual Support Line at (802) 870-0447. This will connect you with Rev. Andre Mol, our Developmental Assistant Minister for Pastoral Care and Membership, or it will connect you with one of our trained caring volunteers. You may also email Andre directly at andre@uusociety.org.

Spiritual Exercises

Option A: Tiptoe Toward Trusting Yourself

Facing our fears takes a whole lot of self-trust. Getting over self-doubt can seem an impossible hurdle. That's why some advise us to simply "Jump!" "Take a leap of faith," we're told. "Go all in!" But what if the secret path to overcoming our fears and believing in ourselves is not one big leap, but instead a bunch of baby steps? This exercise is all about those baby steps.

Here's your challenge in a nutshell: Identify one of your core fears and then find one small way of facing it. Or to put it another way: Find one manageable way to build your "I believe in myself" muscle! Your options are endless.

Fear that you'll never get in shape? Forget getting back into the gym; just commit yourself to taking an hour-long walk every Monday of this month.

Is social anxiety your nemesis? Forget forcing yourself to go to those office parties and just make yourself invite a co-worker or two out for lunch.

Terrified of public speaking? Don't start by volunteering to do a lay sermon, and instead sign up to teach an RE class.

Doubting your courage to pursue that entrepreneurial dream you've had for so long? Don't quit your job and leap in. Instead simply commit to drawing up a business plan for it this month.

Been afraid to stick up for your worth at work and ask for a raise? Don't boldly walk into your boss's office just yet. Instead just sit down and write the raise you want on a napkin and carry it around in your pocket all month.

Bottom line: No need to jump into self-trust head first. Just tiptoe toward it instead!

Option B: Test the Trust Formula

Our monthly theme and Valentine's Day are a perfect fit. Everyone knows that love and trust go hand in hand. But do partners build the trust needed to keep our relationships loving and strong? Psychologist and researcher John Gottman claims that our usual answers have it upside down. Common wisdom advises us that it's dependable grand gestures of love that make the magic happen: surprise romantic getaways or the ability to have "deep conversations." Gottman objects. He says, "Nope, it's the small stuff!" Tiny things, like bringing your partner coffee or putting down your phone when they're talking, or remembering that they have a big presentation coming up next week. Gottman has even created a formula: If you average five of these small positive interactions to every negative or failed one, you are guaranteed a loving and trust-filled relationship!

Sounds too simple, right? Well, this month, you are invited to test it out. Take some time to learn about Gottman's theory by watching the below videos. Then commit yourself to five of these small gestures a week (or even a day!) and see what happens! Note: It works with friendships and other relationships, too! So for those of us who are single, consider testing it out with a family member or friend whose relationship you want to deepen or improve.

Spiritual Exercises

Option C: A Love Letter to Life: A Daily Reminder of Why Life is Trustworthy

Our ability to trust life is related not just to what happens to us but also what we choose to focus on. So this exercise invites us to use intentional focus to strengthen our trust in life. It's a simple but impactful practice of writing a "love letter to life" at the end of each day. Here's a link to an article that explains the ritual and its potential:

<https://www.npr.org/sections/13.7/2012/02/09/146472775/the-pulse-and-beat-of-a-daily-valentine-ritual>

Try it out for a week or even two. Put your own spin on it. Come to your group ready to share your journey.

Option D: Find the Call of Trust in Black History Month

February is Black History Month. Issues of trust are woven throughout. How does one trust in a society and systems that have repeatedly broken their promises of freedom and equality? How is trust repaired at a personal level when unacknowledged microaggressions happen over and over? How does one learn to be a trustworthy ally? The list of questions goes on and on. And maybe the most important question is: "Which is your question?"

Black History Month contains a call for each of us. So as your spiritual exercise, make the time to explore and identify your unique call around racial justice and healing this month. How is Black History Month challenging you to deepen or repair trust? What "trust-work" is it asking of you?

To help you make your way, we've put together a list of various resources that address the relationship between racial justice and trust from a number of perspectives. Here's the link to that document:

<https://docs.google.com/document/d/1d9zFi5mQgpBB-Fh7gBUct91aqJovnY62rt1S3kUbmCc/edit?usp=sharing>

Take your time to go through it in any way that is helpful to you. You can engage the entire list. Or just focus on the ones that stick out. Even seek out other resources if you need. The work is one of exposing yourself to the wide terrain and then finding where your trust-work is located on the map.

Option E: Find Trust in Our Recommended Resources

Our recommended resources are full of wisdom about what it means to be a people of and a person of trust. Engaging these resources and finding the one that especially speaks to you is a spiritual practice in and of itself.

So, if none of the above exercises call to you, engage the recommended resources section of this packet as your spiritual exercise for the month.

Set aside some regular time throughout a week to go through them and meditate on them until you find the one that most expands or deepens your understanding of trust. After you've found it, consider printing it out and carrying it with you or pinning it up so you can continue to reflect on it throughout the weeks leading up to your group meeting. Come to your group ready to share where the journey led you.

Family Exploration

What does it mean to be a family of trust?

(ideas to engage trust as a family)

Family Adventure Ideas

Try this obstacle course activity - Younger and older children will like this activity, especially if parents also join in!

Obstacle Course (indoors or outdoors) - Trust Building

Create an obstacle course of a tunnel (under a table or bush with a blanket covering), over monkey bars, across “lava” on stepping stones (pieces of paper), hanging from a rope, balancing on a curb, blindfolded partner walks around trees, etc.

Invite your family to compete on the obstacle course, with points for:

“Helpful comments through the tunnel,” “family problem-solving through the lava,” “trying again after falling off the balance beam,” “trying something new,” etc.

Keep track of helpful points and make up some as your family goes along. The points are trust points, so invite your family to enjoy how much they built trust.

Another tactile activity requires rocks!

Rock Game - suggested by Liʒa Earle-Center, Director of Spiritual Exploration, UU Church of Montpelier, VT

“On night hikes I used to have a wide assortment of rocks, small, medium, smooth, rough... I’d pass one to each child as we sat close together in the dark. They’d spend a couple minutes holding their rock as I guided them through really getting to know it... then I’d collect them all, and would slowly pass them to one person; slowly one at a time they would get handed around the circle. When yours came to you, you kept it (while still passing the others to your neighbor. Eventually everyone has their rock back and is excited to have found it again! It takes trusting that you really DO know your rock well. This might be played in the daylight with blindfolds or an invitation to close their eyes as they pass the rocks.”

Stories to Read Together

“Belonging - Fannie Barrier Williams” by Janeen K. Grobsmeyer

<https://www.uua.org/re/tapestry/children/journeys/session4/132836.shtml>

“Fannie Barrier Williams helped start a home for girls in Chicago, and she started a center where people could live together, no matter the color of their skin. She was part of the group that started the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (the NAACP), along with Frederick Douglass, Ida Wells Barnett, Frances Watkins Harper, and W.E.B. DuBois. Fannie also worked with suffragists like Susan B. Anthony, helping women get the chance to vote. Because back then, remember, people thought that men were better than women. Women couldn’t own property or have a bank account or vote in elections.”

Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=x-ZWfw2kknA> The video is great!

“Nothando’s Journey is a journey in self-discovery, told through the eyes of a young girl named Nothando. The book tells of the Reed Festival, an important celebration in Nothando’s country of Swaziland in Southern Africa. Nothando and her brother venture into the unknown hills, in order to get to the festival on time. As Nothando explores the hills of Swaziland, she visits with various animals--Nothando moves freely with the animals and begins to become comfortable with who she is.” - Amazon

As always, don't treat these questions like "homework" or try to answer every single one. Instead, make time to meditate and reflect on the list and then pick the one question that speaks to you most. The goal is to figure out which question is "yours." Which question captures the call of your inner voice? Which one contains "your work"? What is it trying to get you to notice? Where is it trying to lead you?

1. Who has taught you the most about risking trust?
2. What have you trusted since childhood? What have you never lost faith in?
3. How have you changed your mind about trust?
4. Are you trusting or ignoring your gut right now?
5. What would happen if you trusted life enough to let go?
6. What would happen if you trusted that you are right where you are meant to be, that life is exactly what you need right now?
7. Have you ever been surprised that someone was willing to trust you?
8. When broken trust left you broken-hearted, what voice in your head or word from a friend helped you pick up the pieces?
9. Have you ever felt betrayed by your country?
10. What would it mean to trust people to be who they are rather than what you wish they were?
11. You're worried about how this thing in front of you is going to work out. Might it be possible to trust that you will be fine either way?
12. What have you learned about trusting grief, rather than trying to make it go away?
13. Has it ever been hard to trust that your children will find their way?

What's your question? Your question may not be listed above. As always, if the above questions don't include what life is asking from you, spend the month listening to your days to hear it. Or maybe the question or call you need to hear is waiting in one of the quotes listed in the following pages. Consider looking there!

A bird sitting on a tree is never afraid of the branch breaking, because her trust is not in the branch but in her own wings.

Word Roots

“Trust” comes from the Norse traust, Proto-Germanic traustam, and Old English treowian.

All these roots point to confidence, reliance, protection, solace, and support. They ask, where do you find your confidence? Where do you find solace? - Rev. Douglas Taylor

“I was noticing that trust and truth share the first three letters ‘tru.’ I went searching for the origins and etymology of both words, trust and truth, and found that they share in common one word - faithful. I began to explore then how trust and truth might be linked and to what and whom is it that I am faithful.” - Beth Atchison

Wise Words

“As you start to walk out on the way, the way appears.”
- Rumi

“I imagine trust as these invisible hands that we stretch out into the world looking for someone to hold on to as we walk into the unknown future.” - Alya Titarenko

“To have faith is to trust yourself to the water. When you swim you don’t grab hold of the water, because if you do you will sink and drown. Instead you relax, and float.”
- Alan Watts

“In our prayers, we are ‘nestling in’ with reality, adopting a stance that declares we trust what is ‘out there’ and what is ‘inside.’ In moments of meditation we assume a certain confidence, a faith that what is, is ultimately friendly, capable of supporting our life... No matter what befalls, no matter what you become, Love awaits...” - Barbara Merritt

“As free congregations we enter into this covenant, promising to one another our mutual trust and support.”
- Closing affirmation to our Unitarian Universalist Statement of Principles

“Distance doesn’t ruin a relationship, doubts do.”
- Unknown

“When something feels off; it is. Trust yourself.”
- Unknown

“A bird sitting on a tree is never afraid of the branch breaking, because her trust is not in the branch but in her own wings.” - Unknown

Today I want to greet joy
Without a trace of suspicion.
- Amy Loyd

“Few delights can equal the mere presence of one whom we trust utterly.” - George MacDonald

“It is mutual trust, even more than mutual interest that holds human associations together.” - H.L. Mencken

“Trust is like the air we breathe. When it’s present, nobody really notices. But when it’s absent, everybody notices.”
- Warren Buffett

“When you’re surrounded by all these people, it can be even lonelier than when you’re by yourself. You can be in a huge crowd, but if you don’t feel like you can trust anybody or talk to anybody, you feel like you’re really alone.”
- Fiona Apple

“You may be deceived if you trust too much, but you will live in torment if you don’t trust enough.” - Frank Crane

“The only way you can make a [person] trustworthy is to trust [them].” - Henry Stimson

“I don’t need a certain number of friends, just a number of friends I can be certain of.” - Alice Walker

“The glory of friendship is not the outstretched hand, not the kindly smile, not the joy of companionship; it is the spiritual inspiration that comes to one when you discover that someone else believes in you and is willing to trust you with a friendship.” - Ralph Waldo Emerson

“Crocodiles are easy. They try to kill and eat you. People are harder. Sometimes they pretend to be your friend first.”
- Steve Irwin

“I’ve come to trust not that events will always unfold exactly as I want, but that I will be fine either way.”
- Marianne Williamson

“Follow your bliss and the universe will open doors for you where there were only walls.” - Joseph Campbell

“There is always that edge of doubt. Trust it. That’s where the new things come from.” - Albert Huffstickler

If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too...
Yours is the Earth and everything that’s in it...
- Rudyard Kipling, “If”

“Trust that truth whether good or bad, pretty or ugly, is still truth . . . the knowledge of anything true brings freedom and empowerment back to oneself.” - Alice Walker

You were born with greatness.
You were born with wings.
You are not meant for crawling,
so don’t.
You have wings.
Learn to use them and fly.
- Rumi

You have brains in your head.
You have feet in your shoes.
You can steer yourself any direction you choose.
You’re on your own.
And you know what you know.
And YOU are the one who’ll decide where to go...
- Dr. Seuss

“For Grief?” by John O’Donohue

When you lose someone you love...
It becomes hard to trust yourself.
All you can depend on now is that
Sorrow will remain faithful to itself.
More than you, it knows its way...

“A Blessing for the Brokenhearted” by Jan Richardson
From The Cure for Sorrow: A Book of Blessings for Times of Grief
Full poem: <http://paintedprayerbook.com/2014/02/10/a-blessing-for-the-brokenhearted/>

Let us agree for now that we will not say

the breaking
makes us stronger
or that it is better to have this pain
than to have done
without this love...
Perhaps for now
it can be enough to simply marvel
at the mystery of how a heart
so broken
can go on beating,
as if it were made for precisely this...
as if it trusts
that its own persistent pulse is the rhythm of a blessing
we cannot begin to fathom
but will save us
nonetheless.

“Wait” by Galway Kinnell
Full poem: <http://www.ayearofbeinghere.com/2014/10/galway-kinnell-wait.html>

Wait, for now.
Distrust everything, if you have to.
But trust the hours. Haven’t they carried you everywhere, up to now?
