Introduction From Soul Matters

We all are playing.

Playing it up, playing it down, trying to play fair.

Playing for keeps, playing favorites, playing it safe, sometimes too safe.

He plays hardball; they're playing house; I'm playing it by ear, or at least learning to play it by ear.

She's tired of playing second fiddle; he's playing right into their hands.

Please God, can't we all just throw out the playbook and start again?

Sometimes we're just played out; it's not always bad to play possum.

And what about playing with fire?

Let's hope so, friends.

Don't you want to feel again that burning within, and let it loose?

Welcome to the month of play. May we all take it seriously!

Self-Care for the Spiritual Journey

When we go deeper into spiritual exploration together and individually, we may encounter tender spots in our own spirits and stories. It is important, in doing spiritual work, to have trusted companions and adequate support on your journey. We hope you will care for yourself and your spirit along the way, engaging in the theme to the level that's comfortable for you.

Likewise, please know that your congregation is here to offer support if you find yourself struggling with something surfaced by the monthly theme. If you would like to be in touch with the trained caring volunteers on the Pastoral Care Associates team, feel free to email Rev. Patricia Hart, Developmental Senior Minister, at revtricia@uusociety.org.

Spiritual Exercises

Option A: Do It, Don't Just Talk About It!

Why talk about play when we can do it?! That's right, this exercise invites your group to carve out some time to play together. Sometimes we get so lost in thinking about the benefits of play for individuals that we lose sight of play's core gift: it connects us! It's an entirely different way of being together, one that helps us deepen relationships and understand each other in a way that few other things can.

So, is your group willing to give it a try? Just set aside the first hour of your meeting and play a game. And to make it easier, we've pulled together a bunch of simple and fun games for you to choose from. Check them out at docs.google.com/document/d/1MhV8dVJpxyrHsHbFmifLlQYwdDhuCnl4or3fusOE3J8/edit?usp=sharing.

Option B: Skip the Games and Tell a Joke

Games are great, but who doesn't love to tell and hear jokes?! Play together by having everyone hunt down, bring in and tell two of their best jokes!

Now be careful; this is trickier than it may seem. You might already know your two ringers. Good for you. You could certainly leave it at that. But an alternative might be to spend a week asking your family and friends what their favorite jokes are and then picking your two favorites from those choices! This way you get to play at receiver and teller of the joke!

Option C: Go on a Playdate

This is another way to actually play rather than just talk about it all month: Ask your partner or friend to go on a "play date." What makes up that play date is up to you. That's half the fun! And half the exploration. By deciding together what to do, you might discover something entirely new about how your partner or friend defines play and fun.

While you need to figure it out for yourself, here are some ideas to spark your imagination: get lost on purpose, axe-throwing, a mini road trip, giving paddle-boarding a try, hit the golf-driving range, fly a kite, play cornhole, mini golf or better yet, frisbee golf. Or maybe make it a double or triple play date and invite over other couples to play The Newlywed or Best Friend Game.

Option D: Find Play in Our Recommended Resources

Engaging our recommended resources and finding the one that especially speaks to you is a spiritual practice in and of itself. So, if none of the above exercises call to you, set aside some time to go through the recommended resources section of this packet and meditate on them until you find the one that most expands or deepens your understanding of play. After you've found it, consider printing it out and carrying it with you or pinning it up so you can continue to reflect on it throughout the weeks leading up to your group meeting. Come to your group ready to share where the journey led you.

Don't treat these questions like "homework" or try to answer every single one. Instead, make time to meditate on the list and then pick the one question that speaks to you most. The goal is to figure out which question is "yours." Which question captures the call of your inner voice? Which one contains "your work"? What is that question trying to get you to notice or acknowledge? Often it helps to read the list to a friend or loved one and ask them which question they think is the question you need to wrestle with!

1. What makes something play for you? When you feel free from the burden of producing an outcome? When creativity is involved? When you lose time? When you can just be yourself? All of the above? Something else?
2. What forms of childhood play have lasted into your adulthood? What has enabled that? What makes you especially grateful for it?
3. What did you learn from the games you played as a child? Monopoly, King of the Hill and Dodge Ball certainly instill different lessons than Red Light-Green Light, Clue, Jump-Rope, Pictionary or Hopscotch. What lessons from your favorite childhood games do you notice "playing out" for you in the present?
4. What is the opposite of play?
5. Can worship be play?
6. Can play lead to transcendence?
7. Can play be a form of political resistance?
8. When has play saved or healed you?
9. Who keeps you playful?
10. What would it look like to sneak a bit of playfulness into your daily chores? Your dinner prep? Morning commute? Exercise routine? Workday? Your relationship?
11. Do you remember "a perfect day of play"?
12. Are you a good winner? How about a good loser?
13. What saying regarding play captures a key storyline in your life right now: playing it up, playing it down, playing fair, playing for keeps, playing favorites, playing it safe, playing hardball, playing house, playing it by ear, playing second fiddle, playing right into their hands, throwing away the playbook, played out, playing hard to get, playing possum, playing with fire?
14. If you could give your younger self advice about play, what would it be?

What's your question? Your question may not be listed above. As always, if the above questions don't include what life is asking from you, spend the month listening to your days to hear it. Or maybe the question or call you need to hear is waiting in one of the quotes listed in the following pages. Consider looking there!

Word Roots & Definitions

“Across the globe, many of the etymological roots of the word ‘play’ locate it in the visceral: ludere in Latin refers to leaping fishes and fluttering birds. The Anglo-Saxon lācan means to move like a ship on the waves, or to tremble like a flame. The Sanskrit keridati also, as in Germanic languages, describes the movement of wind. In play, we are rarely immobile. We’re alive.”

- source

“This embodied sense of play extends to other sources of the word. The Proto-West Germanic ple-gōjanan meaning ‘occupy oneself about’ and the Middle Dutch pleyen, ‘to rejoice, be glad.’” - source

Wise Words

“Let us arrive as children to this huge playground – the universe.” - Roger Bourland

“In play we move below the level of the serious, as the child does; but we can also move above it—in the realm of the beautiful and the sacred.”

- Johan Huizinga

“If I get to pick what I want to do, then it’s play... if someone else tells me that I have to do it, then it’s work.” - Patricia Nourot

“They are enlightened who join in this play knowing it as play, for people suffer only because they take as serious what the gods made for fun.” - Alan Watts

“In rare moments of deep play, we can lay aside our sense of self, shed time’s continuum, ignore pain, and sit quietly in the absolute present, watching the world’s ordinary miracles. No mind or heart hobbles. No analyzing or explaining. No questing for logic. No promises. No goals. No relationships. No worry. One is completely open to whatever drama may unfold.”

- Diane Ackerman

“To play is to listen to the imperative inner force that wants to take form and be acted out without reason. It is the joyful, spontaneous expression of oneself.”

- Michelle Casson & Stewart Cubley

“You can discover more about a person in an hour of play than in a year of conversation.” - anonymous

“We don’t stop playing because we grow old, but rather we grow old because we stop playing.”

- Karl Groos

“To truly laugh, you must be able to take your pain, and play with it!” - Charlie Chaplin

“It is interesting that Hindus, when they speak of the creation of the universe, do not call it the work of God, they call it the play of God, the Vishnu-lila, lila meaning ‘play.’ And they look upon the whole manifestation of all the universes as a play, as a sport, as a kind of dance.” - Alan Watts

“I realized that the way of play was a part of all religions. St. Paul proclaimed himself a ‘fool for Christ.’ Jews honor the Sabbath, that time to stop working and to take pleasure in life. Hindus say that the universe was created as ‘lila,’ divine play. (After all, the Omnipresent Eternal One needed something to do.) Muslim Sufis teach through jokes about Mulla Nasruddin, a laughable sage/fool. Native Americans celebrate bawdy trickster-figures. (Try attending a Cherokee ‘Booger Event.’) Buddhists practice meditative games of breathing, attention, and joyful presence. Zen teachers poke fun at dogma, as in master Feng’s pronouncement: ‘The Buddha is a bullheaded jail keeper, and the Patriarchs are horse-faced old maids!’ It seemed the whole world was playing with Spirit in a thousand delightful ways.” - Drew Leder

“The world of play favors exuberance, license, abandon. [In it,] selves can be revised.” - Diane Ackerman

“Time is a game played beautifully by children.”

- Heraclitus

“Don’t play the saxophone. Let it play you.”

- Charlie Parker

“The children sat in a circle around him & he said, I don’t believe in life anymore & no one said anything for a while because he was older than they were & maybe knew something they didn’t, but then someone said, let’s play a game & someone said, Spy & someone else said, Chase & soon there was no one there but the man sitting alone.” - StoryPeople

“Humanity has advanced, when it has advanced, not because it has been sober, responsible, and cautious, but because it has been playful, rebellious, and immature.” - Tom Robbins

“I count that day lost when I am not moved to laughter or tears, but even more if I have not played.”
- George Sheehan

“I tell you; we are here on Earth to fart around and don’t let anybody tell you different.” - Kurt Vonnegut

“Life is for sure the greatest game that you’ll ever play.” - Steven Redhead
