The Human Services program provides the skills and competencies required for a variety of position in the helping professions. Human services professionals work with children, adults, groups, families and the elderly experiencing a wide range of problems. This includes those with developmental disabilities, individuals with mental health problems or disorders, people with substance abuse problems, clients with work -or educational related issues, or those needing assistance with basic life need issues such as housing, food and clothing.

The Human Services Substance Abuse Counseling program allows for all the course work required for licensing as a chemical dependency counselor, as well as the supervised practicum training, is provided.

Students can apply for temporary licensure and pursue employment (clinical internship) after completing the Basic Chemical Dependency Counselor Certificate, although completion of the Associate of Applied Science degree in Human Services is required for full licensure.
