

DEMENTIAVERSE

A NEW FRONTIER IN LEARNING,
COLLABORATION & SCHOLARSHIP

SEPTEMBER 13-14, 2021

SERENBE, CHATTAHOOCHEE HILLS, GA.

TWO WAYS TO ATTEND: ONSITE (limited space available) AND VIRTUALLY

LEARN MORE ABOUT

- What our genes can tell us about our health
- Environment, diet, and lifestyle to cause positive health outcomes
- The integration of people living with dementia as a social justice issue
- The relationship between biophilic design and wellness

BROUGHT TO YOU BY:

FEATURED SPEAKERS

Dale Bredesen, MD

Dale E. Bredesen, MD, is a professor at the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA, and the founding president and CEO of the Buck Institute for Research on Aging. Dr. Bredesen received his undergraduate degree from California Institute of Technology and his medical degree from Duke University. He served as resident and chief resident in Neurology at the University of California San Francisco, and was postdoctoral fellow in the laboratory of Nobel laureate Prof. Stanley Prusiner. The Bredesen Laboratory studies basic mechanisms underlying the neurodegenerative process, and the translation of this knowledge into effective therapeutics for Alzheimer's disease and other neurodegenerative conditions, leading to the publication of over 220 research papers.

Bill Browning

William Browning, MS, is the managing partner at Terrapin Bright Green, an environmental strategies research and consulting firm. He holds an MS in Real Estate Development from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Browning's clients include Disney, New Songdo City, Lucasfilm, Google, Marriott, Bank of America, Salesforce, the Inn of the Anasazi, the White House, and the Sydney 2000 Olympic Village. Browning was a founding member of the U.S. Green Building Council Board of Directors.

Jennifer Carson, PhD

Jennifer Carson, PhD, works to envision and develop opportunities for individual and collective growth to combat ageism and ableism, and improve the inclusion and well-being of elders, with a particular interest in persons living with dementia. Dr. Carson is director of the Dementia Engagement, Education and Research (DEER) Program in the School of Community Health Sciences at the University of Nevada, Reno.

Lisa Feiner

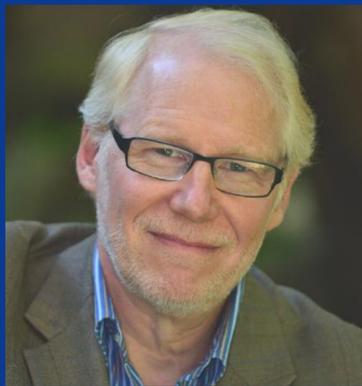

Lisa Feiner, MBA, MED, is a board certified health and wellness coach, and co-founder and chair of Sharp Again Naturally. After receiving her MBA from Columbia Business School, Feiner worked in corporate human resources and consulting. She obtained her MED in counseling and became a health coach in 2002. Feiner has worked with clients suffering from a range of issues, all of whom were helped through better nutrition and a healthier lifestyle.

FEATURED SPEAKERS

Emi Kiyota, PhD

Emi Kiyota, PhD, is an environmental gerontologist and organizational culture change specialist, who currently serves as a consultant to implement person-centered care practice in long term care facilities. Having published journal articles and book chapters in Germany, Japan, Switzerland, and the United States, Emi has done pre-design programming for senior housing and addiction treatment centers in the United States and abroad.

Al Power, MD

Allen Power, MD, is an internist, geriatrician, and Schlegel Chair in Aging and Dementia Innovation at the Schlegel—University of Waterloo Research Institute for Aging in Ontario, Canada. He is also clinical associate professor of medicine at the University of Rochester, N.Y., and an international educator on transformational models of care for older adults, particularly those living with changing cognitive abilities.

Heather Sandison

Heather Sandison, ND, is the founder and medical director of North County Natural Medicine and the founder of Marama. She earned her naturopathic doctorate at Bastyr University in Seattle. Dr. Sandison specializes in neurocognitive medicine and neurohacking. She has been trained to specifically address imbalances that affect the brain, including Autism, ADD/ADHD, depression, anxiety and Alzheimer's disease, and has trained with Dr. Dale Bredesen, Dr. Neil Nathan, Dr. Bill Walsh, and Dr. Ritchie Shoemaker, in addition to regularly attending and speaking at integrative medicine conferences throughout the year.