

October 17 Is International Credit Union Day

Since its inception in 1948, International Credit Union Day® has been celebrated every year in October by credit union members around the world. What is the purpose of International Credit Union Day? It's a time to honor credit union members, recognize the movement's leaders and pay tribute to the many ways in which credit unions improve lives every day.

The theme for this year's International Credit Union Day is: "Local Service. Global Reach." This theme draws attention to credit unions' unique focus on providing superior service to their membership, which, in turn, can lead to better financial lives for people across the globe as the credit union movement and its impacts spread.

We are honored to serve as your credit union and invite you to stop by on October 18 to help us celebrate International Credit Union Day and JMAFCU's 39th anniversary, which is October 21. After all, it is your loyalty and patronage that have led to the resounding success of JMAFCU, and we want to say thank you!

We hope to see you on October 18!
