With this latest release we are exposing more value from the flight planning engine capability by providing the total and breakdown of Nav Fees (Navigation Fees) for computed route options. Access to review this information alongside computed routes provides users the ability to consider an additional factor when selecting a flight plan route. Below is information on how to review this data when creating a flight plan.

Nav Fees Total in Routing Pane

The total navigation fees of all the applicable regions along the flight plan route considering rates and distances will display in U.S. dollars (USD) as a component of the route display. To see further detail about the makeup of the charges click on the Nav Fees total value hyperlink.

By clicking on the hyperlinked total value of Nav Fees, a new window will pop open with a full breakdown of the navigation charges by region. The currency amounts here will display in the currency in which the charge is levied, which may be the local currency, or may still be USD. Since the total provided is in USD, we have provided a column with the Amount in USD in this breakdown, as well.

The Nav Fees data shown here is collected and updated routinely to ensure the latest information is available, however this is still an estimate based upon the latest collected data at the time of your flight plan generation. The final value is included in your invoices from the various official authorities tasked with levying charges and collecting fees.

We hope this new feature provides yet another source of valuable information in your flight planning. We invite you to provide feedback for future evolution of the Nav Fees feature and information so we can continue to make your flight planning experience easier.
