

The Arts & Crafts Movement in the Pacific Northwest

Photo by Marissa Natkin

Noted historian Lawrence Kreisman offers a presentation with the Queen Anne Historical Society based on his award-winning book with co-author Glen Mason, The Arts and Crafts Movement in the Pacific Northwest.

This event is Tuesday, October 13, at 7 p.m.

Find us on Facebook at Queen Anne Historical Society

The talk on YouTube is at QA History

Send your questions, before or after the free public event, to info@qahistory.org.

This on-line talk will explore the craftsmanship, creativity and beauty of nature in the first quarter of the 20th century. Kreisman will discuss trends in architecture, interior design, furniture, fine arts and photography from that period that are still treasured in homes today.

Kreisman, Hon. AIA Seattle, was Program Director of Historic Seattle for 20 years. He has been recognized for bringing public attention to the Northwest's architectural heritage and its preservation through courses, tours, exhibits, lectures, articles, and 10 books.

CULTURE