ADDRESSING THE NEEDS OF
THE WHOLE CHILD WITH RESTORATIVE INTERVENTIONS

What is restorative justice?

RESTORATIVE JUSTICE PRACTICES

- Builds relationships.
- Strives to be respectful to all.
- Provides opportunity for equitable dialogue and participatory decision-making.
- Involves all relevant stakeholders.
- Addresses harms, needs, obligations, and causes of conflict and harm.
- Encourages all to take responsibility.

Dr. Jessica Yang is a multi-talented and passionate social worker and social justice (DEI) expert, scholar, and educator with extensive demonstrated success in utilizing research and compassion to improve outcomes for marginalized populations, creating and delivering quality education, and fostering positive community partnerships. Presently, Dr. Yang is working as a research consultant and community partner with several local agencies on projects involving restorative practices, mental health, school discipline, substance use, and workplace culture.
