Me, with my “I can do better than that” attitude, planted beds full of variegated marigolds in May in anticipation of this project.

I then went on a thrifting blitz to find ceramic pumpkins to use as the base for my over-the-top pumpkin palooza. With the dark days of winter just around the corner, what better way to brighten the shorter days of autumn than with a meld of two seasons. Watch out friends and mere acquaintances! There might be a pumpkin in your future
