LESSON EIGHT: LESS STEEP HILLS

A More Generous Story

Think of someone in your life who wasn't as supportive as you wanted them to be. Without talking to them, come up with 3 reasons why you might imagine they had a hard time showing up.

Forgiveness doesn't always require two people. When we practice taking the perspective of someone else to imagine the situation through their eyes, we can practice Forgiveness by letting go of anger or frustration simply by offering them (and ourselves) a more kind version of the story.
