

Erin Bagnatori

We are very excited to announce that Erin has become an owner at Turnstone. With this transition Erin has demonstrated his commitment to realizing the full opportunity that Turnstone presents. And Turnstone has demonstrated our commitment to Erin as an invaluable member of our team.

“If I could invent a person to round out our ownership group, it would be Erin”, said CEO Harvey Ryan. It is rare to find one individual with the work ethic, theoretical intelligence and practical field experience that Erin brings to Turnstone. “And he’s a really good guy”, Ryan added.

“I love the people at Turnstone and jumped at the opportunity to put my roots down here and help build the legacy of a special company with unlimited potential”, said Erin. Erin’s title remains Vice President of Operations. In this capacity, Erin is responsible for overseeing all aspects of Turnstone’s residential operations as well as the commercial division, Stratus Commercial Contractors. But as an owner Erin will now help shape policy and strategy.

Erin has spent his entire working life in construction. His interest and passion for job sites began as a boy, while spending summer breaks on construction sites with his father. Erin continued working in new construction during his high school breaks.

After attending the University of Delaware, he spent most of the 1990’s supervising commercial construction projects in Wilmington, DE. Erin moved to Rehoboth Beach in 2001, following the housing boom, and has been involved in the growth of the area ever since.

Erin enjoys meeting the challenges of the fast-changing, custom home market. He also has extensive experience managing commercial construction projects including renovations of restaurants and professional offices throughout the state. Bagnatori has also managed the construction of large projects including a 60,000-square-foot medical facility and a large financial institution headquarters.

In his free time, Erin loves hanging out with his son Gabriel (who has also been seen on a few job sites), reading, playing chess and enjoying many of the outdoor activities southern Delaware has to offer.