

Candace Nordquist
CMKBD, CLIPP

Among her many honors and recognitions are two national NKBA winning projects in 2022

The national design competition receives hundreds of entries each year, and winners are ultimately chosen based on factors like innovative design, presentation, superior function, creativity, safety and ergonomics and adherence to NKBA Planning Guidelines.

About

Candace does not conform to one style, rather looks at the needs of each client and carefully balances form, texture, color, contrast and mixed use of materials to create the best fit.

She helps set priorities, solves design challenges and provides expertise and guidance throughout the decision-making process. Candace is committed to design excellence and client service, and believes in an open exchange of ideas through a collaborative process.

Candace had the honor of being the interior designer for the Northwest Idea House & the South Sound Remodel of the year. She has served for many years on the Puget Sound council, with her last position as President 2018-2019.

Outside of design, Candace & husband Jon are avid travelers. They are parents of a 3-year-old daughter named Charli and they all love to spend time relaxing with friends and family.
