With a substantial manufacturing plant in China, Owings Mills-based Lion Brothers has been navigating through the COVID-19 epidemic long before most U.S. businesses even knew what it was. Their China plant was shut down in January and re-opened a month and a half later, and of course, their Maryland locations have since had to respond appropriately to the epidemic here in the U.S.

On May 13, Lion Brothers' CEO Suzy Ganz will join us for a candid conversation to share her company's Coronavirus response and recovery experiences. Whether you are a small manufacturer or large, local or international, we are confident you will find this open dialog with Suzy one that will enlighten, inspire and reinforce that none of you are alone in your struggles in these uncertain times.
