

Michael Zink

VP, Strategic Technical Partnerships
LG Electronics

As Vice President of Strategic Technical Partnerships for LG Electronics (LGE), Michael Zink is responsible for partnering with the creative community, technology providers and industry groups to help guide LGE's product planning group in ensuring their media solutions products provide the best canvas to bring incredible stories to life.

Prior to joining LGE, Michael worked at Warner Bros. for the past decade, most recently as Vice President of Emerging & Creative Technologies, responsible for exploring emerging technologies to enhance WB's storytelling capabilities across different platforms. Before that, Michael worked at Technicolor for over 10 years, leading Technology Strategy initiatives and launching the production efforts around various new distribution formats. Earlier in his career, he worked for several media production facilities in Germany.

Michael also participates in several industry associations. He was the President & Chairman of the UHD Alliance for over 6 years, and responsible for launching the 'Filmmaker Mode' initiative. Michael is a member of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, the Television Academy and a SMPTE Fellow.