Here at last is paradise on earth! Those who fly into the islands and stay at hotels experience only a part of the magic. It is only in sailing between the blue ocean of the South Pacific, turquoise lagoons and majestic volcanic peaks, as the ancient Polynesians did in their outrigger canoes, that one realizes the full majesty of French Polynesia!

The four major islands have ancient volcanic centers which rise from lovely calm lagoons ringed by outlying reefs, also known as atolls. French Polynesia uses the Cardinal buoyage System (versus the Lateral System used in the US), allowing safe passage in and out of the atolls. Steady trade winds provide fast reaches of about 5 hours between the islands.

Good anchorages are abundant among the central islands as well as on the motus, lushly vegetated islets that have evolved on the encircling barrier reefs. These coral atolls have sandy beaches and offer stunning views back toward volcanic ranges!

Activities

There's plenty to do and see in the Society Islands. Snorkeling, swimming, SUP, SCUBA and kayaking, are just a few of the water activities available. The coral reefs are spectacular as they rise from 80 feet or more to just a few feet deep! Van tours, car, bicycle and scooter rentals are available ashore.
