

Paper Frisbee Craft

Supplies:

- 2 paper plates (standard size, not the flimsy kind)
- Colorful markers or crayons
- Scissors
- Clear shipping tape (the wide roll kind)

Instructions:

1. Lay both paper plates flat on your workspace with the eating side facing up. Cover the front of each plate completely with clear shipping tape. Overlap the strips slightly as you go so there are no gaps. Don't worry about the edges yet – just let the extra tape hang off the sides. Once each plate is covered, use your scissors to trim away any excess tape around the rim. You want a clean edge.
2. Now flip both plates over so the taped side is down. The bottoms of the plates are now facing up. Have fun and decorate with markers or crayons. The more colorful, the better it looks mid-air.
3. Hold both plates together with the decorated sides facing outward. Cut a circle out of the center of both plates at once. The hole should be roughly the size of a tennis ball – big enough to give the frisbee its aerodynamic shape, but not so big it loses structure.
4. Now lay each plate separately with the decorated side facing up. Cover the decorated side of each plate with clear tape, just like you did in Step 1 – overlapping strips, working your way across. When you reach the center hole, fold the excess tape through the hole and press it down on the back. Trim any rough edges around the outside rim so everything looks clean and tidy. The tape gives the frisbee a nice, smooth surface that helps it glide through the air.
5. Place the two plates together with the decorated sides facing outward – your design should be visible on both the top and bottom. Run clear tape all the way around the outer edge, pressing firmly to bond the two plates together. Work your way around the full rim until it's completely sealed. Give it a gentle squeeze – it should feel solid and sturdy, not floppy.
6. Go play!
