Catholic Health Training Institute

South Sudan still has the highest maternal mortality rate in the world. One of the causes is the lack of qualified health personnel

SWSS Response: CHTI PROJECT

CHTI, based in Wau, is working to train certified health professionals, to protect the health of women and their children, and to promote women's empowerment and peace building.

307

Nurses (208) and Midwives (99) graduated at CHTI

Every year, CHTI trains nurses and midwives from different tribes and parts of the country. After a three-year course, they will receive a nationally recognised certificate to work in all of the health facilities of South Sudan.

38% of all graduates are women

The presence of female personnel enhances women's access to health services.

39%

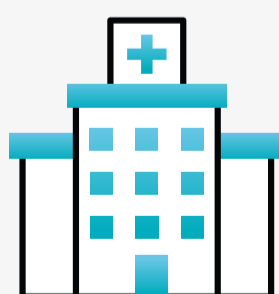

of the students currently attending CHTI are women

Solidarity works each year to increase the percentage of female students enrolling at CHTI.

85% of all graduates works in the health facilities of South Sudan

CHTI is regarded as one of the best training institutes for health personnel in the country.

Each year 2 graduated are sponsored for further studies at university

Women are promoters of peace

Providing them with professional training in a multicultural context promotes consciousness raising that values the rights of women and children, peaceful coexistence, exchange and unity among the South Sudanese people.
