

Beth Israel Deaconess
Medical Center

HARVARD MEDICAL SCHOOL TEACHING HOSPITAL

Chief, Division of Transplantation
Department of Surgery
Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center
Boston, MA

Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center (BIDMC), a major teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School, is seeking a distinguished transplant surgeon to serve as Chief of the Division of Transplantation in the Department of Surgery. The successful candidate for this position may be considered for appointment at Harvard Medical School at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor, commensurate with experience and achievements.

The successful candidate will be board certified by the American Board of Surgery; must have a demonstrated track record of clinical excellence and scholarly activities, with achievements in the fields of transplant surgery, basic or clinical research. S/he must be experienced in administration, the supervision of residents and fellows, and the teaching of medical students. The candidate should have a history of external, peer-reviewed research funding, and should possess a vision for developing the division in a dynamic and competitive marketplace.

BIDMC, a 745-bed hospital and Level 1 Trauma Center, is a founding member of Beth Israel Lahey Health, and one of the nation's preeminent academic medical centers. As a major teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School, BIDMC is a fully integrated medical center, with over 7500 full-time staff members.

Applications are made online at www.hmfphysicians.org/careers. Please respond to requisition # 172048.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions or any other characteristic protected by law.