BRIGHAM AND WOMEN'S HOSPITAL (BWH) in Boston, Massachusetts invites applications for the position of Associate Chair for Critical Care Medicine and Chief of the Division of Critical Care within the Department of Anesthesiology, Perioperative and Pain Medicine (DAPPM). Candidates should be exemplary leaders, clinicians, teachers and researchers interested in leading a division devoted to promoting and expanding the field of critical care. It is expected that applicants have an MD degree with board certification in Anesthesiology and Critical Care Medicine.

Candidates must provide evidence of continuing medical education and meet the metrics for an academic appointment at Harvard Medical School (HMS) at the level of Associate Professor or Professor. Instructors or Assistant Professors with extraordinary promise (e.g. leadership experience) may be considered. Applications are welcome from candidates with more than seven years of experience post-training with evidence of progressive management responsibilities and leadership in an academic department. Candidates must have a demonstrated record of collaboration and possess the ability to engage a broad base of potential stakeholders to work towards a shared vision.

We are an equal opportunity employer and all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability status, protected veteran status, gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy and pregnancy-related conditions or any other characteristic protected by law.
