

Nominations are being sought for the Vice President for Clinical Quality for M Health. Your confidential recommendation of a colleague or associate who is interested/qualified is welcome.

University of Minnesota Health (M Health) represents a partnership and functional integration of University of Minnesota Physicians (UMP) and University of Minnesota Medical Center, Fairview (UMMC). This integration provides an opportunity to deliver an exceptional experience for patients and families through high quality, integrated health care, advanced medical research and nation-leading education of the health care teams of the future.

The VP for Clinical Quality is a member of the executive leadership team for M Health. Reporting to the co-President of M Health and CEO of UMP, Bobbi Daniels, MD, the VP for Clinical Quality leads the implementation of key quality performance indicators and initiatives, working in partnership with clinical leadership of M Health. She/he works with the leadership of M Health to establish and oversee all aspects of clinical quality, patient safety, infection control and other related safety initiatives, and develops/maintains the infrastructure necessary to support the organization. The VP for Clinical Quality will lead a diverse, multi-disciplinary organization to improve internal quality and influence quality outcomes throughout the continuum of care.

M Health seeks an inspiring forward thinker who can take M Health to the next level of linking their culture of quality and patient safety to the transformation of care. She/he will serve as an expert in clinical quality, patient safety and quality improvement, and translate that expertise into clear and implementable goals and processes for the organization by the achievement of top decile performance in national measures of clinical quality.

The successful candidate will be a dynamic, strategic clinical leader with a strong and demonstrated track record in the quality arena. She/he will have three to five years clinical hospital/hospital operations experience, as well as five or more years of hospital Quality Improvement experience. Candidates will also have three or more years experience leading a complex, hospital-wide Quality Improvement program. A Master's Degree or related healthcare degree is required, and a Master's Degree in healthcare quality and safety and/or certification as a professional in healthcare quality is preferred.
