

Keck School of Medicine of USC

Director, Center for Heart Failure and Transplantation Keck School of Medicine of USC

The Keck School of Medicine of USC is seeking applications and nominations for the position of Director, Center for Heart Failure and Transplantation (CHFT)

CHFT offers state of the art treatment of heart failure and is a unit of the Cardiovascular Institute (CVTI) of the Keck School of Medicine at USC, a nationally recognized interdisciplinary center of excellence for surgical and non-surgical treatment of diseases of the cardiovascular system. The USC Heart Transplant Program is Medicare certified for heart transplantation and is one of only 10 programs in the U.S (and the only one in Southern California) to be designated by UNOS as Tier 5.

The CVTI and the Division of Cardiology are embarking on a national search for a new leader for the CHFT to enhance its research profile and to grow its clinical programs and volumes in heart failure, heart transplantation, and mechanical circulatory support.

The next Director will be a nationally recognized cardiologist with a strong history of clinical and translational research, have a reputation as an excellent clinician, and possess the leadership skills to work effectively in a complex academic environment.

Korn Ferry is assisting USC with this important search. Please forward, as soon as possible, nominations and applications to:
