

Division Head of Hospital Medicine
Henry Ford Health System
Detroit, Michigan

Merritt Hawkins, working with Henry Ford Health System (HFHS) located in Detroit, Michigan, one of the world's most distinguished academic medical centers, is seeking nominations and applications for the position of Division Head of the Hospital Medicine. The Division Head will provide oversight for Hospital Medicine within the Department of Medicine for the Henry Ford Medical Group (HFMG).

The Division Head is responsible for providing leadership, developing and coordinating long-range planning for the Division of Hospital Medicine in HFMG Department of Medicine and in collaboration with other System leaders. This is the largest Division within the Department of Medicine, with 50 faculty providing care at three (3) hospital locations. While still growing, they serve approximately 65,000 encounters. The Division Head is responsible for motivating staff to be a highly-functioning, financially sound, integrated system-wide Division while maintaining the highest standards of medical care. The Division Head is expected to maintain a clinical identity while devoting his/her abilities to the proper management, function and efficiency of the division. The Division Head is required to participate in hospital and health system committees and is an advocate for not only the division, but align the divisional goals with the mission of the Department of Medicine, HFMG, and the HFHS.

The Division Head of Hospital Medicine will be looked to for leadership of this critically important clinical division and as a physician leader contributing to the success of the System. He/she should be excited to assume the responsibility for overseeing, directing, and implementing medical services offered by the division. The Division Head will ensure the highest quality of medical care, foster the growth and development of medical programs at HFHS Hospitals, and develop opportunities to improve services and increase patient volumes by supporting programs of prominence that enhance referrals. Hiring and recruiting physicians is an important function of the Division Head, as is retaining high-level physicians and other staff. He/she will act as a liaison to other local hospitals and physicians by maintaining relationships that are helpful and collaborative, and will also focus all physicians at Henry Ford on the importance of community outreach and exemplary communication with referring physicians.
