

Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center El Paso seeks a Director of Women's Imaging

Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC) El Paso is seeking a physician board-certified in Radiology with fellowship training and MQSA certification in Mammography to serve as Director of Women's Imaging. The ideal candidate will have academic experience as well as prior leadership experience, though exceptional candidates without leadership experience are still encouraged to apply.

The Women's Imaging Section is based within the Department of Radiology. The Department consists of 14 faculty radiologists, 12 residents, and 2 fellows. The Women's Imaging Section is a busy section, currently staffed by 1 fellowship trained mammographer, and will be full staffed at two mammographers. Additionally, they are supported by a tele-mammography group that assists with vacation coverage, and with excess reading volume.

Faculty across the Department are involved in academic endeavors including grant funding, research, publication, clinical education and teaching within the medical school. There are ample opportunities to participate in individual interests such as quality improvement and pre-clinical education.

Additional Details:

- The Director of Women's Imaging will see a case mix dedicated to breast and women's imaging, though additional case types are available for interested candidates.
- The Director will be responsible for administrative and reporting duties such as MQSA and ACR, and will be the face of both Women's Imaging and Breast Surgery for the Tumor Boards.
- TTUHSC El Paso offers an exceptional quality of life; this is a Monday to Friday position with no nights, weekends, holidays or call responsibilities.

In addition to practicing at a growing and well respected University, you will live in one of the most family friendly, safe communities in the country. El Paso offers all of the amenities of a major metro area, while also being an outdoor enthusiasts dream.

El Paso

- Enjoy a low cost of living and no state income tax
- Outstanding public and private schools
- 300 days of sunshine per year with a mild climate year round
- Access to a local, international airport
- Consistently rated among the safest communities in the country
- Easy drive to Las Cruces, White Sands and Cloudcroft
