Chair of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine, Emory School of Medicine
Chief of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine, Emory Healthcare

Vacancy Announcement

Position Summary

Emory University School of Medicine is recognized nationally and internationally as one of the nation’s outstanding institutions of biomedical education, research and patient care and is dedicated to training exceptional students who become leaders in academic medicine and biomedical research. Ranked 19th nationally in NIH research, the school is best known for its research and treatment in pathology, infectious disease, heart disease, cancer, transplantation, orthopaedics, pediatrics, renal disease, geriatrics, among other specialties. Emory Healthcare (EHC) is the most comprehensive academic health system in the region. In fiscal year 2017, EHC earned $3.3 billion in net revenue generated from its eleven owned hospitals and numerous clinical sites.

The Emory Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine has the goal of becoming the premier academic pathology program in the world while serving as the training and research hub in one of the largest metropolitan regions in the United States. The training environment encompasses a tertiary care university hospital, the region’s sole public hospital and main trauma center, an urban, community hospital, Veterans’ hospital and the region’s elite pediatric referral center.

The Chair of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine has direct responsibility to build and lead all pathology programs including all clinical, educational and research endeavors involving the faculty/physicians of the Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine with responsibility for the continued development of an academically distinguished department. The Chair serves as a member of the senior leadership team of the School of Medicine who establish the education, research and outreach priorities and lead efforts to ensure the competitiveness of the medical education program. As Chair, s/he is responsible for oversight and management of the Pathology faculty while advancing innovative scientific research programs.

As Chief of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine for Emory Healthcare, the Chair also works closely with the Physician Group President to ensure high quality pathology services to all patients, to coordinate clinical services across all medical facilities, and to exercise appropriate operational and financial management of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine physicians and operations. The Chair works closely with the Dean of the Emory School of Medicine to develop the academic and research programs involving pathology while developing and implementing new pathology programs and services.

Qualifications

Successful candidates will be an accomplished leader in the field of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine and be able to present a vision for building and sustaining a top-ranked department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine. A qualified candidate will hold an MD or MD/PhD degree, be a board certified physician and a nationally recognized Pathology and Laboratory Medicine physician who will hold privileges to provide patient care throughout Emory Healthcare. The individual will provide senior leadership in all clinical, educational and research endeavors involving pathology for the faculty of the Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine, with responsibility for the continued development of an academically distinguished department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine for the School of Medicine of Emory University. Candidates should possess a minimum of ten (10) years of clinical/educational/research leadership experience. S/he will be an accomplished operational and strategic leader with direct administrative experience to include a broad understanding of complex health strategies and issues challenging the field of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine and its medical education programs.

For Consideration

Interested candidates may submit a letter of interest & curriculum vitae including current research portfolio directly to:

Dr. Gregory H. Jones
Associate Vice President for Health Affairs
The Robert W. Woodruff Health Sciences Center
Emory University
Dr.GregoryJones@emory.edu

Interested candidates may also apply by submitting an application for: Requisition 33435 on the following website:  http://www.hr.emory.edu/careers/index.html

Emory University is an EOAA employer. Women and members of minority groups are strongly encouraged to apply.
Emory offers a highly competitive salary and fringe benefits package.