Yale School of Medicine Department of Neurology Dementia and Behavioral Neurology Division Chief

The Department of Neurology at Yale School of Medicine seeks to hire a full time Clinical Chief, Division of Dementia and Behavioral Neurology at the rank level of Associate Professor or Professor, based on education and experience in neurodegenerative medicine.

The successful candidate for the Chief is expected to provide leadership while assertively expanding and improving the division's current capabilities and influence. The ideal candidate will have a strong training pedigree, a track record of academic and clinical excellence, possess excellent communication skills, and be committed to providing an exceptional patient experience. They will bring a collaborative leadership style coupled with a demonstrated ability to innovate and continue to build a top-ranked program in one of the most vibrant academic institutions in the nation.

The essential duties of this position include: (1) the care of patients with behavior, memory, and cognitive disorders, (2) serving as the clinical leader for the section, (3) representing the faculty at key meetings and committees regarding the clinical mission of the program, (3) supporting the academic chief in research and educational initiatives, (3) teaching medical students, residents, and fellows.

Candidates must have an MD or equivalent and be board certified/board eligible in Neurology and must meet the criteria for medical licensure in the State of Connecticut. In addition, the candidates should have National recognition along with substantial record of leadership and scholarly achievement in the field of Dementia and Behavioral Neurology.

Please send a current CV, and brief statement of interest, to Andrew.berry@KornFerry.com

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled.

Yale University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer and welcomes applications from women, persons with disabilities, protected veterans, and members of minority groups.