

Associate/Full Level Professor of Surgery Vice Chair for Education
Department of Surgery
University of California, San Francisco

The Department of Surgery at UCSF seeks a nationally renowned Surgical Educator and leader to serve as the Vice Chair (VC) for Education. Candidates must be board certified. This faculty position will be full-time at the Associate or Full Professor level.

The Department of Surgery consists of seven clinical divisions (General Surgery, Vascular Surgery, Plastic Surgery, Pediatric Surgery, Abdominal Transplant Surgery, Adult Cardiothoracic Surgery, and Pediatric Cardiothoracic Surgery). It spans several different campuses, including Parnassus, Mission Bay, Mt. Zion, Bayfront Medical Building, Zuckerberg San Francisco General Hospital, the San Francisco VA Hospital, and Benioff Children's Hospital Oakland. Medical students rotate to these sites starting in their first year as well as to UCSF Fresno and UCSF East Bay campuses, and residents from UCSF East Bay rotate at the Parnassus campus of UCSF. We have ACGME residencies in General Surgery, Plastic Surgery, and Vascular Surgery. The Surgical GME platform also includes fellowships in abdominal transplant, minimally invasive surgery, breast, endocrine, plastics, trauma, surgical critical care, limb preservation, microvascular surgery, vascular, pediatric surgery and cardiothoracic surgery. The Department has a world class surgical skills and simulation lab that serves students and residents from Surgery, as well as learners from other departments. There is a surgical education research pathway, with several fellows enrolled. UCSF Surgery also has a doctorally prepared educator to inform the Department's curriculum, assessment and professional development initiatives. The Department has a clear reporting structure that includes this Vice Chair of Education position in all five pillars of UME, GME, Surgical skill and simulation, surgical education research, and faculty development.

The ideal candidate will hold or have held a major educational leadership role in surgery such as Clerkship Director, Program Director, Simulation Center Director or VC of Education or equivalent. A strong history of scholarly activity in education research or curriculum design is expected. A background in fund-raising and endowment development is highly desirable.

The VC for Education will have significant leadership responsibility to oversee all educational programs for students, residents and ACGME fellowships in the Department. This leader will coordinate, strengthen, and further develop broad educational programs in conjunction with the Medical Student Clerkship, Residency and Fellowship Program Directors and the Director of the Surgical Skills Lab. The VC will be responsible for strategy around Education for the Department, working together with the Chair, the doctorally prepared educator, and the leadership of our educational programs. In addition, the VC will need to work together with the VC for Faculty Affairs and Development around faculty mentorship for our learners and the educational continuum in professional development that extends from our students to our residents, fellows, and faculty. The VC will help the Chair to administrate the consolidated education budget for the Department. Furthermore, the VC for Education will oversee all preclinical and clinical courses at UCSF offered by Departmental faculty and collaborate with colleagues across the University and with the Academy of Medical Educators to position UCSF Surgery as an innovative leader in surgical Education locally and nationally.
