

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

ELSON S. FLOYD COLLEGE OF MEDICINE

SEEKS INAUGURAL CHAIR OF MEDICAL EDUCATION AND CLINICAL SCIENCES

NEW MEDICAL SCHOOL | FIRST CLASS 2017 | ALL PHYSICIAN SPECIALTIES WILL BE CONSIDERED

The Chair of Medical Education and Clinical Sciences is a physician administrator with demonstrated success in the education of excellent physician leaders. They ensure the provision of high quality medical and clinical education through the leadership and achievement of educational and research goals and objectives; as demonstrated in medical student outcomes, faculty engagement, and clinical affiliate satisfaction. They lead a team of basic science, clinical science, clinical research faculty and support staff; who develop, teach, evaluate and continuously improve the medical education curriculum and conduct medical education and clinical research. They work closely with the Vice Dean of Student and Faculty Experience to ensure the horizontal and vertical integration as well as overall efficacy of the medical education curriculum. They work with the Dean to identify clinical education sites and to establish lasting affiliation agreements that meet the clinical education needs of Elson S. Floyd College of Medicine students. They coordinate with the regional campus deans to ensure comparable clinical education experiences across all clerkships.

QUALIFICATIONS:

- Rank of Associate Professor or higher
- Understanding of innovative educational methodologies and health care delivery systems
- Experience interacting with the LCME or other educational accrediting bodies
- Served in a senior leadership role in a community-based medical school or academic health center
- Involvement with the development and implementation of performance-based faculty workload models
- Knowledgeable in the use of social networking technology for communications
- Capable of managing professionals in a complex organization
- Proven experience in management of multiple initiatives and multiple sites
- Experience with clinical research

The Elson S. Floyd College of Medicine is pursuing accreditation by the Liaison Committee on Medical Education to become Washington's premier community-based medical school, the College will:

- Embark on creating solutions to the problem of access to quality healthcare in rural and urban underserved areas of Washington State.
- Recruit students from rural and underserved urban communities to establish a pathway to medical school and back to their communities.
- Be statewide and community-based, with medical students completing their academic and clinical work at one or more of WSU campuses to establish relationships in and near underserved areas.
- Focus on providing an interprofessional education that gives students from different health disciplines opportunities to learn in a collaborative environment that provides the skills needed to lead healthcare teams of the future.
- Expand our research enterprise in ways that lead to economic development while having a global impact on the science of human health and wellness.

For full details and information to apply, please contact:

Breanna Elliott, Senior Director of Academic Recruiting

Breanna.Elliott@merrithawkins.com

DEPARTMENT OF ACADEMICS

Office: 469-524-1770