

Nationally recognized pediatric healthcare provider Children's Health, in collaboration with UT Southwestern (UTSW), is seeking a Chief Clinical Transformation Officer (CCTO) to execute a strategy of delivering world-class clinical services through the Joint Pediatric Enterprise (JPE), a joint governance structure between Children's Health and UTSW.

Children's Health is the eighth largest pediatric healthcare provider in the country, and the only academically affiliated pediatric system in the region. The organization has total operating revenues of $2 billion and is now evolved to become a major pediatric network including two full-service hospitals, an inpatient specialty hospital and multiple other specialty centers, clinics and outpatient facilities. The organization is nationally ranked in all 10 pediatric specialties by U.S. News & World Report, serves as the primary pediatric teaching facility for UTSW and is recognized for quality care in every specialty, also holding continuous AANC Magnet® designation for nursing excellence since 2009.

As a key physician executive within the JPE, the CCTO will be an important contributor to the future strategic vision and leadership that delivers nationally leading care that is unified across the clinical enterprise. The CCTO is an instrumental driver in designing, strategizing and implementing a centralized approach in advancing excellence in clinical care and care delivery. To Children's Health, the next generation of healthcare delivery involves the further integration of coordinated clinical service delivery that maximizes efficiency, enhances quality and continuously optimizes care. This leader will take a collaborative and pragmatic approach to achieving organizational goals that will position Children's Health among the top pediatric institutions in the nation.

The CCTO will be an innovative leader, responsive to the changing dynamics of the care delivery model. Excellent interpersonal skills and a reputation of trust, credibility, fairness and high standards of professionalism are necessary for this physician leader. Qualified candidates must hold an MD or equivalent medical degree; be board certified in a pediatric based specialty and eligible for medical licensure in Texas. This leader must meet UTSW's criteria for academic appointment to a faculty position. An advanced degree in healthcare or a business related field is strongly desired.
