

Chair, Department of Women's Health Services
Henry Ford Health System
Detroit, Michigan

Merritt Hawkins, working with Henry Ford Health System (HFHS) located in Detroit, Michigan, one of the world's most distinguished academic medical centers, is seeking nominations and applications for the position of Chair, Department of Women's Health Services. The Chair will be a member of Henry Ford Medical Group (HFMG), and drive the clinical and academic success of this Department.

The Chair of Women's Health Services will have ultimate responsibility for the clinical, educational, research, and fiscal oversight of the Department in order to achieve personal and institutional success. The Department consists of 40 physicians, 21 midwives, and multiple nurse practitioners serving patients at 5 hospitals and 14 medical centers. The academic mission includes Wayne State University medical students, 16 residents and 3 fellowship programs.

Henry Ford Women's Health Services is a leader and innovator in comprehensive care and education in the fields of general obstetrics and gynecology as well as the various subspecialties including urogynecology, gynecologic oncology, minimally invasive gynecology, reproductive endocrinology, maternal-fetal medicine, pediatric/adolescent gynecology, and preventive services. Henry Ford Women's Health Services is poised to build on its tradition of excellence as the health system continues to expand and evolve in its clinical, teaching, and research missions in the era of transformation from volume to value-based healthcare, population health management, and personalized medicine.

The successful candidate will be board certified in Obstetrics and Gynecology, highly regarded in their organization and nationally as an effective leader and outstanding clinician. The candidate will also have a track record of operating and business management experience, preferably within an integrated health system. He or she will have strong communication skills with the ability to form cohesive teams and solid relationships inside and outside departments and organizations.
