GME Program Highlights:

- The IM Program is a three-year program with 10 residents per year for a total complement of 30
- Received its accreditation from the ACGME in January 2020
- High level of acuity usually seen only in tertiary facilities
- Referral center for cardiology, trauma, and critical care services
- Daily Noon conference schedule and lecture series; and scholarly activity participation
- Internal medicine, FM, and PSY residents work together during hospital rotations, such as inpatient adult medicine, MICU, and ED
- Daily census of hospital patients guarantees our residents broad and varied inpatient clinical exposures
- Competitive compensation and comprehensive benefit package with occurrence-based malpractice coverage.

Quality Work-Life Balance in the Seacoast Region:

Portsmouth, New Hampshire is a Seacoast city and sits near the mouth of the Piscataqua River which divides the states of New Hampshire and Maine. Portsmouth is at the core of a metropolitan region that includes several small cities and towns. As the nation's third-oldest city, Portsmouth offers:

- An area that's rich in history and abundant cultural activities
- Small-town charm
- A host of outdoor activities and proximity to major cities
- Top-notch educational institutions—Both public and private
- No sales tax or state income tax
- A one-hour drive to Boston
- Four seasons of weather.

Professional Qualifications/Experience:

- M.D. or D.O. medical degree is required.
- Licensed or eligible to practice in New Hampshire.
- Completed an accredited residency program in internal medicine.
- Current Board-certification and/or re-certified (if applicable) by the American Board of Internal Medicine (ABIM) or Board-certified by the AOBIM.
- Three (3) years of participation as an active faculty member in an ACGME accredited internal medicine residency program and graduate medical education administrative experience prior to appointment.
- Candidates must have strong team building, interpersonal, and communication skills.
- 50% clinical and 50% administrative responsibilities.
- Additional characteristics of qualified applicants include adaptability, creativity, as well as enthusiasm for teaching and quality patient care.
- Candidates with experience as Program Director, APD, and/or Core Faculty with leadership involvement are strongly preferred.
