

Chief, Division of Pediatric Infectious Diseases
University of Miami Miller School of Medicine

The Department of Pediatrics at the University of Miami (UM) Miller School of Medicine and Holtz Children's Hospital of the Jackson Health System are seeking a dynamic physician to serve as the next Chief of the Division of Pediatric Infectious Diseases.

The ideal candidate will be a visionary with demonstrated operational and leadership skills, an established researcher with a track record of extramural funding, recognized clinician, and reputable educator with a collaborative approach and ability to navigate complex systems.

The Division Chief will have the opportunity and resources to foster and build an innovative division that realizes the significant academic and clinical potential of clinical, translational, and basic-science faculty.

Opportunity highlights

- The Division has a strong commitment to innovative research, education, and outstanding clinical care in the field of pediatric infectious diseases
- Division faculty serve as the medical directors of the Antimicrobial Stewardship and the Transplant/Immunocompromised ID Programs, and provide medical directorship and clinical services for the Ryan White HIV Program
- Division faculty provide care at nine ambulatory sites. Community outreach extends through the Pediatric Mobile Clinic, nine school-clinic sites, and the Injury Free Mobile Van
- Current Division faculty are recognized for their expertise in HIV and participate in many advisory groups, consensus workshops, and national and international meetings addressing HIV/AIDS in children
- Our highly reputable ACGM-accredited three-year fellowship program attracts fellows from top programs nationally, offering a rich educational environment
- The neonatal service at Holtz Children's Hospital of the Jackson Health System is one of the largest in the country, with more than 100 beds, and the pediatric transplantation service is one of the busiest in the U.S.

Live and Work in Sun-Soaked Miami

In addition to enjoying an outstanding professional opportunity, the Division Chief will enjoy living in one of the most beautiful, dynamic, and multicultural cities in the world. Miami is the cultural and financial center of South Florida and is one of the nation's most well-rounded metropolitan destinations due to its arts scene, shopping, and family attractions. Miami has everything to offer—from beautiful beaches to great restaurants and excellent public and private school options.

Successful applicants will have a medical degree (MD/DO/MBBS), board certification in pediatric infectious diseases, and at least three years of administrative or leadership experience. Applicants who have a demonstrated contribution to clinical growth, record of impactful scientific discovery, reputation for mentorship and teaching, and commitment to faculty development will be highly considered.

UM values diversity and is committed to equal opportunity for all individuals. We encourage applicants from all backgrounds to apply.

To apply, provide recommendations, or to request additional information on this opportunity, please contact: Ally Geller of Merritt Hawkins. Interested candidates should provide their curriculum vitae and a letter of interest outlining key leadership experiences to Ally.Geller@MerrittHawkins.com. All interactions will remain confidential.