

Jacobs SMBS | University at Buffalo Seeking a Division Director of Maternal Fetal Medicine

Merritt Hawkins, the nation's leading academic search firm, has partnered with The Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Jacobs School of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences at the University at Buffalo to conduct a national search for Division Director of Maternal Fetal Medicine.

We are seeking a highly qualified individual at the rank of Associate Professor or Professor, with fellowship training in Maternal-Fetal Medicine and significant clinical and leadership experience. Subspecialty board certification is required as well as a significant record of either educational or research success.

The successful candidate will build collaborative relationships and grow innovative programs; recruit outstanding faculty; expand clinical outreach opportunities and develop an MFM Fellowship program with a direct reporting relationship to the Department Chair.

Many different schools within the university are leading UB 2020's efforts to advance research and foster community partnerships. UB 2020's accomplishments include a groundbreaking collaboration between the university and Kaleida Health to construct the Clinical and Translational Research Center.

The department is deeply committed to the community - contributing to the health and well-being of Western New Yorkers — particularly those with limited access to, or options for, medical care.

Highlights:

- Academic appointment at the Associate or Professor Level and salary are commensurate with qualifications and are competitive both nationally and regionally.
- Excellent benefits are offered that include health, dental, and vision insurance, a tax saving benefit plan to support your healthcare costs, and generous time off.

The Department offers a comprehensive benefit and professional development package. As the No. 1 research university in New York—University of Buffalo is a place where you can follow your passion, apply your knowledge and collaborate with other top minds to tackle the world's most complex challenges.

The Buffalo Niagara region is a major metropolitan area with a diverse blend of communities, each with its own distinct character. Known for their welcoming nature and spirited loyalty. Get past the snowy stereotype and you'll be captivated. You may never leave.
