

MARCUS HALL
President and Co-Founder
California Self Insurance Law APC

Before founding CA-SIL with his co-founders, Marcus Hall was a partner at two AMLAW 50 law firms in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mr. Hall has focused his 20+ years of practice on business counseling and litigation for various industry segments in two main legal fields:

1. California self-insured law.
2. Technology and intellectual property law.

Mr. Hall has represented clients in many areas, including the food service industry, health care, semiconductors and electronics, farming and farm labor contracting, pharmaceuticals, mechanical design, information technologies, construction and construction management, biotechnologies, and aerospace.

Mr. Hall has represented California workers' compensation self-insureds since 2004, and his clients have found him to be a significant asset to the operation of the self-insured business.

Mr. Hall has assisted California self-insureds in all legal aspects affecting their business, among other areas.

Mr. Hall has assisted in forming and registering California self-insureds, regulatory compliance, insurance coverage and recovery, contract negotiation and drafting, financial compliance and bonding, membership disputes, and collections, loss portfolio transfers, creditor counseling and practice in bankruptcy court, and board counseling and compensation. Mr. Hall has also counseled his clients in various intellectual property transactional areas, including technology licensing, contract negotiation, and patent and trademark prosecution.

Mr. Hall has tried several cases to judges and juries in state and federal court on behalf of his clients and has handled numerous arbitrations and mediations. Mr. Hall's litigation practice has included appearances in California Superior Court in nearly every county in the state. Mr. Hall has also handled several appeals before various California and federal courts of appeal. Mr. Hall has also acted as lead trial counsel in proceedings before the International Trade Commission in Washington, D.C. concerning international trade law. In 2018, Mr. Hall, on behalf of one of his clients, successfully tried a multiple patent case to a jury in San Francisco, California.

Professional Member – California State Bar; United States Court of Appeals – Ninth