A Conversation with the Authors

Walk The Blue Line is a collection of the most dramatic true stories told by police officers in their own unforgettable words about the challenges ingrained in the policing profession. The authors will guide participants through a journey of the book showcasing stories about the courage, the hurt, the anger, and the joy of these officers as they open up about the most difficult days of their policing careers.

Participants will align their experience and understanding as they relate to these stories and the relevance of them to their public leadership role.

About the Authors

James Patterson is the world's bestselling author. The creator of Alex Cross, he has produced more enduring fictional heroes than any other novelist alive.

Matt Eversmann retired from the Army after twenty years of service. His first book with James Patterson was Walk in My Combat Boots.

Editorial Review

“Keen insights into the men and women behind the police sirens. For anyone who has ever wondered what these officers see, how they feel, and why they do it, Walk The Blue Line has the answers. This book will make you think...and it will make you listen.” - Raymond W. Kelly, Chief Executive Officer, Guardian Group
