CEOs of Northern Virginia Chambers of Commerce to be Honored

[Reston, VA] [May 31, 2018] – Today, the Catholic Business Network (CBN) announced its plans to honor five Catholic Chief Executive Officers of Northern Virginia's largest Chambers of Commerce. The event will be held on Friday, June 8 at Hyatt Regency Dulles, 2300 Dulles Corner Blvd., Herndon.

The event will include networking, a plated lunch, panel discussion and a brief awards program. The five CEOs being honored are Debbie Jones, President & CEO of the Prince William Chamber; Jim Corcoran, President & CEO of the Northern Virginia Chamber; Tony Howard, President & CEO of the Loudoun Chamber; Mark Ingrao, President & CEO Reston Chamber; and John Boylan, President & CEO of the Dulles Chamber.

In an informal panel setting, those in attendance will learn how these CEOs apply their Catholic faith to guide them in their leadership positions. Attendees will also hear from the CEOs how each chamber often cooperates for the benefit of the Northern Virginia business community as a whole.

Bruce Gemmill of John Marshall Bank and moderator of the panel discussion, states that "CBN will recognize Debbie, Tony, John, Jim, and Mark with awards for the unselfish leadership each brings to their respective chambers. Every day, these CEOs instill in their staffs the importance all members bring to the chamber. They and their staffs go out of their way to bring value to each member, and they hold events to thank and award member individuals and businesses for their contributions to the chamber, business, and community. The Catholic Business Network felt it was important to turn the tables and give the proper recognition these five deserve."
